2020 Men's Interprovincial Team Announced

Wellington Golf are pleased to announce their team to compete at New Zealand Golf's, Men's National Interprovincial Championship at Whitford Golf Club in Auckland, from November 24th to November 28th.

A strong looking line-up will be lead out by experienced International Kerry Mountcastle in the no.5 position, followed by Sam Marsters who made his debut last year, in the no.4 spot, Matt Morris on his debut for Wellington having moved to the capital this year and previously represented BOP and Waikato in the middle, Jonno Cane captaining the team from the no.2 spot and Jayden Ford will be at the top of the order in the no.1 spot. Elton Nicholson will be the travelling reserve.

The WGI Board, WGI Match Committee and WGI Selection panel, offers all the players congratulations on being selected, and is excited for the team's prospects as the country's 15 provinces come together in a fitting conclusion to the strangest of years, interruptions and cancellations aplenty due to the global pandemic that will continue to have effect for the foreseeable future.

Wellington's opponents are Hawkes Bay, Poverty Bay, Waikato, North Harbour, Auckland and Bay of Plenty, a group aptly named the pool of death with most teams containing nationally ranked players.
